Sailing through the continents of theatre

The starting point for this event was the desire to pay tribute to Eugenio Barba, and reflect on his legacy in Brazil and throughout the world. The great and enthusiastic adhesion to our initiative is the demonstration that, at 85 years of age, the master is still in dialogue with artists and researchers, encouraging us through his creativity and inspiring us through his attitudes and coherence.

The event will be divided in three weeks: the last weeks of September (27/9 to 1/10), October (25 to 29/10) and November (22 to 26/11). In each week we will approach a different concept that Barba has formulated or approached in his path and that we consider to be crucial themes for theatre in this starting millenium. In the first week, the theme is the Third Theatre, a concept that shone on theatre during the 1970's, bringing to light the ethos that guided Group Theatre in those times. We intend to inquire about the meaning of this concept in today's Theatre. The Theatrical Anthropology, that investigates the pre-expressive level that is subjacent to performative behavior - the foundation of construction of the identity of artists and groups, in dialogue with the brands (ethnic, gender, class, etc.) of their original cultures - this is the theme of the second week. In the third week, we will investigate the cultural action of the Theatre Groups, that characterizes their relationship with society, by creating a context in which the performance is only one of the aspects of group culture. Another of the aspects of this cultural action is the articulation of artists and scholars in networks of experience and information exchange.

To discuss these themes, their unfoldings and entanglements, we have gathered 23 Brazilian groups (coming from 4 regions) and 4 foreign groups (from Denmark, Italy and Peru), plus 5 Brazilian and 8 foreign scholars (from Denmark, Italy and the UK). In bringing together, for this virtual meeting, a numerous and significative gathering of groups and scholars that have been sailing through the oceans of the performing arts, guiding themselves through the stars mapped out by the Italian master-sailor Eugenio Barba and by his companions of Odin Teatret, this event has reached a previously unpredicted scale: we realize that, beside the divulgation of ideas and artistic works to a wider audience, this is also a propitious situation to fuel the exchange of experiences and practices between the participating groups, in the vein of group encounters that forged the Third Theatre movement, in the 1970's and 1980's. We hope this will be an occasion to weave the networks of exchanges between artists and researchers that help creating the routes of our sailings.
